Alumnus recalls the GW of WW II

GW to open exhibit highlighting life on campus during the war

BY MICHELLE VON EUW

Fifty years ago, Cloyd Heck Marvin was president of GW. Strong Hall was the only residence hall on campus and Lisner Hall was a "modern" library. Students, for the most part, worked for the government during the day before attending night classes. They gathered at Quigley's Drug Store or the student union at Woodhull House, which now serves as University Police headquarters. Spirited discussions about the victories of the basketball team were interrupted by the threat of war.

On May 11, an exhibit that depicts life at GW during World War II will open at the Colonnade Gallery on the third floor of the Marvin Center. University archivist David Anderson said the exhibit, which coincides with the 50th anniversary of the war's end, will include photographs, artifacts and alumni anecdotes.

"The exhibit will focus on student life from 1939 to

SA president, PB chair, CI director to be recognized with GW Awards

BY JUSTIN BERGMAN
NEWS EDITOR

Student Association President Al Park, Program Board Chair Amanda Fugazy and Director of Campus Activities Steve Loflin will be given GW Awards during Commencement ceremonies this year.

The three will be honored with the awards, which were established in 1976, for surpassing "the call of duty to affect significant and lasting contributions to the advancement of our University," according to a University statement.

"I must admit it was a big shock," Park said of being chosen as an award winner. "I feel honored and privileged."

Park was the first National Law Center student to be elected SA president. He will be acknowledged for "returning the institution of student government to its rightful bearers - the students," the statement said.

Park will receive his award at the NLC Commencement May 28, when he will also graduate. He said he plans to take the bar exam in July and has applied to be a law clerk for Chief Judge John Conway, who chairs a federal court in Park's home state of New Mexico.

Park will be recognized for implementing financial aid seminars, the book exchange, student judicial advising and many other programs. He also raised an additional $71,000 for GW's student groups, created a scholarship fund and established a permanent liaison to the District's Advisory Neighborhood Commission.

Park added, though, that he did all of these things as SA president not so he could win an award, but because he "thought it was the right thing to do."

Fugazy will be honored at the Commencement May 14 for "dedicating herself to serving the GW community since the moment she

Five speakers will address graduates

BY DONNA BRUTKOSKI
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Graduates of the Class of 1995 will hear the parting advice of not one, but five leaders in their respective fields at this year's Commencement ceremony.

American Red Cross Director Elizabeth Dole, former Israeli Foreign Minister and current GW professor Abba Eban, former House Speaker Thomas Foley, National Urban League President and CEO Hugh Price and United Press International White House Bureau Chief Helen Thomas will all address the 3,065 graduates on the Ellipse May 14.

The five speakers will also receive honorary doctorates at the ceremony, which the University expects will draw a crowd of 20,000.

GW President Stephen Joel Trachtenberg said that in the past, only one honorary degree recipient spoke at Commencement while the others merely received their degrees and perhaps said a brief word of thanks.

"This year we decided to experiment," Trachtenberg said, adding that each of the five recipients will speak for "a period about equal to that used by Lincoln at Gettysburg." He said the five speeches together would take about 25 minutes - the same length of time a single speaker would normally use.

"We believe that several brief comments, carefully crafted by our honorary degree recipients, will have a tremendous impact on our graduates," Trachtenberg said. "It may also prove to be more lively than a single talk."

Dole, who will receive a Doctor of Public Service degree, has been president of the American Red Cross since 1991. Before that, she served in the cabinets of two presidents, as Secretary of Labor under George Bush and Secretary of Transportation under Ronald Reagan. She also was head of the White House Office of Consumer Affairs under Presidents Johnson and Nixon.

Dole has received recognition for her efforts in helping women and minorities fight workplace discrimination, including the Women Executives in State Government's 1993 Lifetime Achievement Award. A Gallup Poll named her one of the world's 10 most admired women.

Eban, who will receive a Doctor of Humanities degree, was Israel's first ambassador to the United Nations after leading his country's efforts to become a member of that organization. He served as UN ambassador from 1948 to 1959 and simultaneously held that position and the position of ambassador to the United States from 1950 to 1959. Eban was Israel's foreign minister from 1966 to 1974.

Talkin' loud and sayin' nothin'

3,065 graduates – and a memory for every one of 'em

I hear that I'm a senior now. It's a big step. Now my class gets to go last when the cheerleaders ask, "Seniors! Seniors! What's your number?!" Now it's my turn to take those little freshmen to a keg in the woods and get them drunk for the first time and then toilet paper all their houses. Man, this year is gonna be the best Prom ever!

Oops, sorry. I just gravitated back to my only prior experience as a senior. This time around, I have more important things to worry about. I have to be on the lookout for tasty résumé morsels ("Achievements: Once won a putt-putt golf competition while chugging a beer for every hole.")

Not so for this current crop of graduates. Hopefully, they have everything all lined up. Hopefully, these four years of hard work will pay off in the form of financial security and personal happiness. Hopefully, they'll have a more eloquent outlook than one of my graduating friends, who when asked about the rite of passage says, "It's scary. I'm scared."

Worrying about the future, however, can wait until another weekend – or at least until Monday, May 15. For just this weekend, the class of 1995 can put its worries on hold and savor its achievements. It is a time for the 3,065 graduating seniors, in front of their friends and families, to mark their move into the real world by ... standing up and sitting down.

Of course, they'll also get to hear Thomas Foley. And Helen Thomas. And Hugh Price. And Elizabeth Dole. And Abba "Dancing King" Eban. And Tito Puente. And the actor who played the dead guy in Weekend at Bernie's.

You'll have to forgive my flippancy. As some of my friends receive their diplomas – actually, as they receive an I.O.U. and a promise of mail-order sheepskin – I'll be in the audience yelling, "Bring on Abba!" My problem here is one of perspective. I'm not a member of the class of '95. What does its Commencement mean to me?

Almost three years ago, I was dropped off at GW by my oldest brother. He newly married, and I newly dropped into a foreign environment. My brother, always one to instantly spot the big picture in any situation, remarked, "I think we're at a crossroads." I said nothing. I had said nothing practically the entire weekend, literally almost too scared to speak. For God's sake, I couldn't write a check without assistance.

My brother was reluctant to leave – he rightly feared that I might never leave the room. But he did, and I went into my anti-septic room 613 of Thurston Hall to sit in silence. About two minutes later the phone rang. It was my new roommate. I helped him move in, and we began to talk.

There are at least 3,065 other stories of Defining College Moments that can be told, and none of them, it's safe to say, have to do with Commencement. The sentiment surrounding the commencement rite – any rite – can be easy, even cheap. At this point, I'm not sure that my college years were the best of my life and I don't expect to feel that way when I do the cap and gown next year. Nor do I expect a chapter in the Book of Life to be closed the moment I toss my mortarboard into the air. The ceremony is a symbol; it's the getting there that counts.

But that doesn't mean these have not been the best years of my life or that a chapter will not close. My graduating friends have contributed to my memories of the past three years, and as they move on I will, in a smaller way, be moving on myself.

I will not be attending the ceremonies this Sunday to hear the speakers, impressive as they are, will not go to say goodbye, because I know that I will see my friends again. My wise oldest brother recently told me that sentiment is an emotion most purely felt in the past tense. So as I sit in the bleachers on the Ellipse this Sunday, I will remember my yet-unfinished college years and how my friends with the diploma added to them.

In saying "commence," I'll be meaning "thank you."

*Deferred Apple Computer Loan offer expires June 2, 1995. No payment of principal or interest will be required for 90 days. Interest accruing during this 90-day period will be added to the principal and will bear interest which will be included in the repayment schedule. Monthly payment is an estimate based on a total loan amount of $1,937.54, which includes a sample purchase price of $1,865 and a 6.0% loan origination fee for the Performa 6115 system shown above. The monthly payment for the total loan amount described above would have been $34. The interest is variable based on the commercial paper rate plus 5.35%. For example, the month of February 1995 had an interest rate of 11.57% with an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of 13.32%. The monthly payment and the APR shown assumes 90-day deferral of principal and interest as described above, and no other deferral of principal and does not include state sales tax. Product prices, product availability, loan amounts and sales taxes may vary. The Apple Computer Loan has an 8-year loan term with no prepayment penalty and is subject to credit approval. Prequalification expedites the loan process but does not guarantee final loan approval. © 1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Senior Week offers fun, freebie

BY MONIQUE L. HARDING
HATCHET STAFF WRITER

Graduating seniors will have one last week of fun and free T-shirts courtesy of GW before they have to hit the real world following Commencement.

"It's a chance for seniors to get together with classmates they met in their freshman year in Thurston or Mitchell or wherever they lived," said Tim Gore, a graduate assistant in the Office of Campus Activities.

Senior Week is planned by a committee consisting of juniors Byron Thomas, Scott Mory, Marie Condon, Jodi Reborchick, Diana Rubin and Rachel Donner.

Gore said the "Back to the Beginning Happy Hour" at Mr. Henry's on Thursday will bring graduates back to a place where many GW freshmen begin their college social experience.

"Henry's was a social (place) for most (of the graduating seniors when they were) freshmen, whether to drink or to have hamburgers," he said.

He added that since exams should be over by Wednesday and parents will not arrive until the weekend, the planning committee thought a trip to Atlantic City would be a great idea for Thursday.

This trip will give seniors a chance to "spend some money before they start paying off their student loans," Gore quipped. "Or if they hit it big, pay off their student loans."

Seniors will be treated to free things all week, including pizza at Dove and Rainbow Monday and snacks at movie night Tuesday, which will feature "Clerks" in George's. T-shirts will be given away throughout the week.

"We wanted to do something nice for the seniors since it's the last week here. We didn't want them to pay for everything," Gore said.

Reborchick said she helped organize a wine-tasting party which was held Sunday, May 7, at the Marvin Center's H Street race.

The organizing committee started meeting in the fall to plan Senior Week activities. Seniors previously had planned the week's activities, but Donner said they thought "it would be a nice tradition to start" having juniors plan the events.

Other events scheduled for the week include a dedication ceremony for Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis Hall (formerly Milton Hall) Monday in Dorothy Betts Marvin Theater, sight-seeing around the District Wednesday and a cook-out on University Yard Friday.

Five alumni achieve distinguished awards

JARED SHER
EDITOR IN CHIEF

While Commencement weekend is a time to honor graduates as they prepare to venture into the real world, it is also a time to reflect on the achievements of past graduates.

That is why GW recognizes its most accomplished alumni each year. This year, the University will confer Distinguished Alumni Achievement Awards on five GW graduates in a ceremony May 13.

Nancy Brennan, Russell E. Carlisle, Merrill A. McPeak, Margaret Richardson and Clarence B. Rogers Jr. each have attained notable success in their respective professions.

Brennan has been executive director of the Baltimore City Life Museums since 1983. She manages seven historic attractions and coordinated the creation of Baltimore's History Alliance, a consortium of 23 historical sites and museums.

Brennan earned a master's degree from GW's School of Education and Human Development in 1975. She did her undergraduate work at the University of Pennsylvania.

Carlisle is a partner at Carlisle and LeCates, a Florida law firm. He played a key role in implementing Florida's Interest on Lawyers' Trust Accounts Program in 1981. The program provides loans and scholarships to law students and money for legal aid to the poor. His work has earned him the American Bar Association's Pro Bono Publico Award and the Florida Bar Association's Medal of Honor.

Carlisle earned his law degree from the National Law Center in 1955. He also graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the University of Michigan.

McPeak is a retired U.S. Air Force general and chief of staff. He was a member of the Thunderbirds, an elite squadron of Air Force pilots, from 1966 to 1968. He later became chief of staff at the headquarters of the U.S. Air Force in Europe and commander in chief of the Pacific Air Forces.

McPeak received a master's degree from the Elliott School of International Affairs in 1974. He also has earned many decorations for his military service.

Richardson is commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service, where she manages an operating budget of $7.2 billion and a total staff of 115,000 employees. She has also worked on initiatives to reform the IRS. She is the second woman to head the agency since it was founded in 1863.

Richardson received her law degree from the National Law Center in 1968.

Rogers is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Equifax Inc. He previously served as the company's president and chief operating officer. He also is on the Atlanta committee for the 1996 Olympic Games.

He earned a master's degree from GW's School of Business and Public Management in 1962.

Blackmun to address NLC graduates

Former Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun will be the keynote speaker at the commencement exercises for the National Law Center on Sunday, May 29.

Blackmun is most remembered for writing the majority opinion in Roe v. Wade, the landmark 1973 Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion in the United States.

Blackmun was appointed to the court in 1970 by President Nixon. He retired in 1994. At the time of his retirement, he was the senior justice of the Court.

Prior to his appointment to the Supreme Court, Blackmun served on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 8th Circuit. He was appointed in 1959 by President Eisenhower.

Blackmun graduated summa cum laude from Harvard University in 1929 with a degree in mathematics and went on to earn his law degree from there in 1932.

The NLC commencement will be held in the Smith Center at 1:30 p.m.

SUNDAY, MAY 14TH - COMMENCEMENT!

9:00 am Upon arrival at the Ellipse, graduates should proceed immediately to the procession formation sites designated for their school. Graduates will be able to identify their school's line-up location by the color-coded banners that will be in place on the Ellipse. The School colors are:

WhiteColumbian College and Graduate School of Arts and Sciences Bachelor's Degree students (CCGSAS Bachelor's) GoldColumbian College and Graduate School of Arts and Sciences Master's Degree students (CCGSAS Master's)
RedElliott School of International Affairs (ESIA)
Royal BlueSchool of Business and Public Management (SBPM)
OrangeSchool of Engineering and Applied Science (SEAS)
Light BlueGraduate School of Education and Human Development (GSEHD)
GreenSchool of Medicine and Health Sciences (SMHS)

Doctoral Candidates from all schools, Doctor of Medicine representatives and representatives from the National Law Center should report at 9:00 am to the faculty tent adjacent to the stage on the Ellipse to line up for the procession. Guests of the graduates are encouraged to sit in the section closest to their graduate's school.

9:30 am The processions led by the Washington Scottish Pipe Band begin.

10:00 am The Commencement ceremony begins.

12:00 noon At the conclusion of the ceremony the deans and faculty of each school will assemble at canopies on the Ellipse marked by color-coded banners. Graduates and their guests are invited to greet deans, faculty and friends at these designated locations.

GRADUATES ARE STRONGLY ENCOURAGED TO CLARIFY, BEFORE THE CEREMONY, THE EXACT LOCATION WHERE THEY WILL MEET THEIR GUESTS AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE CEREMONY.

INCLEMENT WEATHER

The Commencement Ceremony will be held rain or shine on the Ellipse. In the case of threatening or rainy weather, graduates and guests are encouraged to bring umbrellas, rain gear and a sense of humor! In the event of severe weather, the commencement ceremony will be abbreviated. For clarification regarding the status of commencement in the event of inclement weather on Sunday May 14, please call (202)994-4949 or (202)994-5050.

Graduates should remind their guests that the ceremony will take place on grass that may be moist, and there will be a considerable amount of walking. Appropriate footwear is encouraged!

Dole, Eban, Foley, Price and Thomas are honorees

Eban is the James C. Welling Professor at GW, which involves lecturing and participating in student and faculty seminars. He came to GW as the Maurice C. Shapiro Professor of International Affairs and taught both an undergraduate course and a graduate lecture.

Foley, who will receive a Doctor of Laws degree, served his home state of Washington as a Democratic representative to the U.S. House from 1965 to 1994. He is most noted for his service as House Speaker from 1989 to 1994. Before he was elected Speaker, Foley served as House majority whip from 1981 to 1987 and then as majority leader from 1987 to 1989.

After losing a bid for re-election in 1994, Foley became a partner in the law firm of Akin, Gump, Strauss, Hauer and Feld, specializing in international affairs. He serves on a number of advisory councils, including the Council on Foreign Relations.

Price will receive a Doctor of Laws Degree as well. He has been president of the National Urban League, which assists blacks in working for social equality through programming and advocacy, since 1994. Price has a long history of minority advocacy, including several years in the late 1960s as the executive director of the Black Coalition of New Haven.

Price also served on the editorial board of The New York Times from 1978 to 1982, writing editorials about public policy issues. He was the senior vice president of WNET, New York City's public television station, for the following six

Thomas, who will receive a Doctor of Humane Letters degree, has been covering the White House for UPI since 1961. She has covered the press conferences of several presidents, from Kennedy to Clinton, and many other aspects of the federal government since joining the wire service in 1943.

Thomas broke ground for female journalists in Washington, D.C., as the first female officer of the National Press Club, the first female member of the Gridiron Club and the first female president of the White House Correspondents Association.

Three to be honored for tireless efforts stepped onto campus as a freshman four years ago," according to the statement.

In addition to her role as Program Board chair this year, she also served as chair of the PB parties committee her freshman year and has been involved in organizing dozens of activities and programs at GW over the years, including the Ambassador's Lecture Series, Family Weekend, International Week, Fall Fest, Spring Fling and the Kobe, Japan earthquake relief effort.

She was also the first member of PB to explore corporate sponsorship for PB events, and she said she has been able to establish long-lasting relationships with several companies in the past few years.

"I feel very honored. I'm very proud of my accomplishments at GW, and that they have been recognized with this award," Fugazy said.

"The joke is that people always ask me about the GW Award, and I say, 'Don't even bother applying,'" she said. She said she had thought "you can't win it unless you've written a book or something."

Fugazy said she was "shocked" to learn that she had been nominated and chosen to receive the award.

Fugazy said she will start at St. John's University Law School in the fall and get married next summer. In the future, she said she hopes to go into politics and maybe run for office.

Loflin, who also serves as head of Colonial Inauguration, will be given a GW Award at the Commencement May 14 because he is "the embodiment of everything which is right about campus life at GW," according to the statement.

Loflin is not only a dedicated administrator, the press release stated, but he is also an "excellent resource" for the student groups which the Office of Campus Activities serves. His contacts through CI and other programs which he plans have made it possible for student groups to provide quality events for the University.

"Steve has a zest for life and a positive outlook that are infectious to those who work with him," the statement read.

"To be perfectly honest, I was very surprised," Loflin said of his reaction to winning the award. He said his enjoyment of his work with students is reward enough, but added that the award is "a very nice thing" which he is honored to receive.

Student speaker will discuss disabilities

Graduate student Joy Cobb said she wants to make her fellow graduates aware of how they can help peers who have disabilities.

She will have a chance to do so when she speaks at Commencement May 14. Cobb was chosen through a University-wide contest as this year's student speaker.

Cobb, from Fort Walton Beach, Fla., will receive her master's degree in rehabilitation counseling from GW's Graduate School of Education and Human Development. She also completed her undergraduate studies here, receiving a degree in psychology in 1992.

She said learning to live with a disability herself has made her more aware of the problems of other disabled students. Cobb said she attended several colleges before coming to GW, but found that none had the resources to help her with her disabilities, which include epilepsy and dyslexia, a learning disability.

Cobb said she hopes to work with disabled students in higher education, adding that she would like to work in an office similar to GW's Disabled Student Services office, where she interned while she was a student.

Commencement Guide

1947," Anderson said. He added that the huge influx of veterans who arrived at the school between 1944 and 1947 drastically changed the face of GW.

One alumnus, Nicholas Lakas, remembers in great detail his three years at GW before he enlisted in the Navy in 1944.

"D.C. in the late 1930s was a rather small, very southern town," recalled Lakas, who arrived in the nation's capital from New York City. He said the New Deal had brought thousands of federal employees to the city and it was just beginning to grow.

"It was somewhat dismaying," Lakas said of the District's size. "And it was constraining in terms of recreation."

GW was the center of most of its students' social lives. Greek life flourished, and the International Student Society was extremely active, Lakas said. "The University was our universe," he said. "There was far more going on on the campus" than in the developing city.

Lakas, who is president of the Columbian College Alumni Association and resides in Bethesda, Md., was a member of the Glee Club and head cheerleader in 1942 and 1943.

The social event of the year was the Homecoming

Ball, which coincided with a major football game. Lakas recalled that the dance was held in one of the city's largest hotels. A big band played as women in long gowns danced with men in black ties.

In 1942, the cheering squad had its first mascot, a Great Dane named Smokey. The dog, which was draped in a banner that had his name on one side and "GW" on the other, trotted around the field during football games.

"Whenever we would be losing, Smokey would start to howl loudly," Lakas said. "Somehow he knew the score."

But the lighthearted activities of campus life were overshadowed by the news of war in the Pacific and in Europe, and the threat of U.S. involvement.

"Our very peaceful community suddenly began to change," Lakas said. "We became more and more mindful of the war. Many of our male friends began to disappear."

Lakas enlisted in the Navy in 1943. On one of his final nights at GW, Lakas, with 10 other members of the Glee Club, participated in one of his favorite activities for the last time. They gathered outside the windows of Strong Hall and serenaded the ladies inside.

"We looked at each other, and we knew it would never be the same," Lakas said.

Lindy's bids adieu to GW graduates

Employees remember students past

BY CLAIRE DUGGAN
HATCHET STAFF WRITER

The sign outside Lindy's Bon Appetit, 2040 I Street, reads: "As you from Colonial to Happy Taxpayer, we wish you all good sense, good health and good fortune." These words represent the relationship Lindy's has had with GW students for almost 20 years.

The mom and pop restaurant, better known as "The Bone" to its loyal patrons, is seen by many students as a place where they can buy appetizing, inexpensive specialty burgers and other sandwiches.

Co-owner Lindy Adams said she has appreciated GW students for two decades her restaurant has been on campus. "GW students are some of the nicest kids anywhere," Adams said.

Because the restaurant has been around for so long, its employees have seen how the University has evolved over the years. "The ethnic make-up of the student body has dramatically changed," Adams said.

Adams said the change in the student body has not altered its overall attitude. "The students are so courteous. They're the greatest group of people," she said.

Herb Rosenberg, co-owner with his daughter Lindy and wife Marilyn, agreed. "The students here at GW are infinitely polite," Rosenberg said. He added that some things have changed, too. "They don't carouse as much as they used to," he said. "Also, they don't drink and smoke as much anymore."

He said he has noticed that GW students have always been committed to getting a degree and getting a good job after college. Rosenberg said he has not seen a change in their work ethics.

"GW students work their tails off," he said.

Those who work at Lindy's know a lot about their customers. "My father loves talking to all the kids," Adams said. "He asks about their classes and anything else they've been up to."

Many alumni stop by Lindy's when they visit GW to let people know how they are doing. "Before they graduate, they'll also come by to tell us what they'll be doing after college," Rosenberg said.

Chef Harry Hines said students have become inconspicuous over the years. "We don't see a lot of them as much," he said. "I think it's because more students are on the meal plan, and they're probably studying more."

"Big" John Holly, another chef at Lindy's, also said he enjoys students' company when they come for a meal.

The employees have many humorous anecdotes about the restaurant. Adams told the story of one GW alumna who called from Montana and asked if she could send him a Burl Ives sandwich — a double cheeseburger and hot dog with barbecue sauce and pickles on a sub-roll — through the mail.

"People think that Gerald Ford used to come in here, but it was actually his sons," Adams said. She added that they used to correct people who made the claim, "but now we just ignore it and let them play it up. There's no harm in that."

Ronald Reagan mentioned Lindy's on CNN once, and both Bill Clinton and Al Gore promised that they would come in, she said.

Although it has gotten national attention, Lindy's remains committed to its GW clientele. Rosenberg's sign outside the restaurant sums up the staff's feelings: "Lindy's Bon" has been glad to feed you."

GW's emblems reveal evolving image of the University

BY KEVIN ECKSTROM
ASST. NEWS EDITOR

As GW has changed over the past 174 years, so too has its logo. From manhole covers to T-shirts and spiral notebooks, GW's logo is everywhere on campus. But just as the size and location of the University have taken on new forms, its logo has had many incarnations as well.

University. It featured an open book hovering above the portrait of a lion and a lamb. The name of the school was inscribed in Latin on a round seal.

The original seal was amended in 1873 to read "Columbian University" after the school's name was changed. In 1904, when the school became The George nations as well.

The first GW logo was the seal of Columbian College, the original name of the Washington University, the current University logo was created. Since then the logo has had little change.

The seal, which is similar to GW's current official logo, was designed by Frederick Owens. It featured the bust of George Washington and the words "Deus, Nobis, Fiducia" above and around his head.

In 1989, the University began an effort to create an easily recognizable system of logos to identify the school. The official seal was redesigned to feature a more focused profile of the school's distinguished namesake. In addition, another official logo was designed in 1989 as the traditional wordmark, featured on GW letterhead and the yellow banners which decorate campus.

This past year the University versary celebration, which features a negative-image picture of George Washington and the 175th logo with the official GW wordmark symbol. All University departments are using this new logo on official letterhead and publications.

Commencement Guide

Some tips to help make your commencement fun and easy

JIM GERAGHTY
HATCHET STAFF WRITER

Parking is limited and difficult, especially since the Advisory Neighborhood Commission has recommended raising the parking to $500 per tire. If you drive, plan to arrive early. How about a vember?

There will be shuttle bus service between the campus and the ellipse starting at 7:30 a.m. Fortunately, it will be driven by Andrea Bullock and there is a sign on the bus, designed to go off the bus exceeds five miles per hour.

Shuttle bus service can be more crowded than a free showing of Top Gun. If you wish to see or part of the academic processions, you should board the bus before 9 a.m. ... Wednesday.

The academic processions will begin at 9:30 a.m. sharp! The fabric of commencement speakers will drag on until 8 p.m. dull!

Guests should remember Commencement involves a lot of walking, trotting and stomping, and the ceremony, like some residents of Thurston Hall, is on grass. Everyone is encouraged to wear comfortable, flat-heeled shoes except those graduating from the Graduate School of Deconstructive Philosophy, who are required to wear shoes that exist only in theory.

The use of personal video cameras will be allowed to the extent that they do not obstruct the view of guests in the audience. Please be considerate and bring your own makeup. Stunt doubles will not be provided for the Washington Scottish Pipe Band Stunt Spectacular.

- There will be a paramedic station and water stations at the Ellipse. Ushers will direct lost children to the paramedic station. If lost children are not claimed by the end of the day, they may be turned over to the GW Medical Center for cloning experimentation.

- The lost and found was planned to be located at the paramedic station. However, it has been misplaced.

- Restroom trailers will be provided ed at the Ellipse for your convenience. This is the ideal situation for your final collegiate practical joke, so make plans to lure the jerk who brown-nosed in your PoliSci class into the port-a-potty, lock him in, then knock it over.

- Those looking for extra tickets to commencement are encouraged to camp outside the Smith Center overnight, sing "Hail to the Buff and Blue" every hour on the hour, and beg Mike Jarvis for his tickets ... or contact your nearest scalper.

- The ceremony will be based on a color-coded system that identifies each school. Graduates should look

School Banner Colors:

Mauve..... The Columbian College and Graduate School of Artistic Columbians

Plaid..... Elliott School of Extramarital Affairs

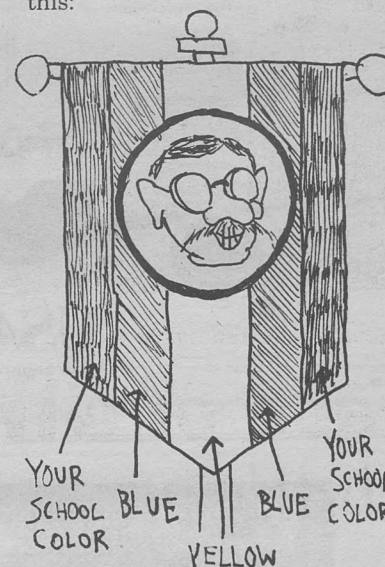

Teal..... School of Buses and Public Mismanagement

Silver and Black... School of Engineering and Apple Science

Clear Saran..... Graduate School of Edjookayshun and Inhuman Development

Tie-Dye..... School of Medicine and Wealth Sciences

All of the banners will have one yellow and two dark blue center stripes, with the school's colors in flanking stripes. They will look like this:

(Attention readers: This is a humor column. These tips are not meant to be taken seriously, and The GW Hatchet takes no responsibility for any injuries incurred if taken seriously. On the other hand, we think it'd be really funny to see somebody get locked in an outhouse.)

Student leaders leave legacies, take memories ahead

BY KAREN D. ANCILLAI
ARTS EDITOR

"I hope not to be remembered as the crazy lady who showed John Wayne Bobbitt Uncut on campus," graduating Program Board Chair Amanda Fugazy said.

Fugazy and other graduating student leaders recently reflected on their tenures at GW as their terms in office reached an end, and they prepared to set out for the world beyond college.

Al Park, outgoing Student Association president, said he feels his administration restored the SA's integrity and made it more responsive and accessible. The SA reached out to the student body this year with the SA table in J Street, tours of Thurston and Adams halls, visits to various hall council meetings, an e-mail address and posted office hours for the SA vice presidents.

"We tried to run (the SA) like a business for students, with an open-door policy," Park said.

Outgoing Residence Hall Association President David Cleary said he believes he began a trend of improved communications between his organization, other student groups and the administration.

"I think I went out of my way to work with everyone so that we weren't working at odds," he said. Cleary said he felt his and other student leaders' sense of responsibility and maturity made the year a success.

Richard Carter completed his term as president of the Black Peoples' Union this month. He said he wants others to remember him for his work making GW's Black History Month into a program attracting a larger part of the campus than before. He said he has encouraged incoming president Akosua Walker also to listen to what the membership wants when she plans programs.

"The membership is the most important part of any group," Carter said. He said a group's plans should include not so much of what its leader has in mind, but more of what the people want.

Elissa Leibowitz turned over the editor in chief position of The GW Hatchet to rising junior Jared Sher last week.

"I hope to be remembered for taking The Hatchet to a new level," she said. "Or at the very least remembered so that the new people (at the newspaper) next year won't say 'Elissa who?'" Leibowitz oversaw the independent student newspaper's move out of offices in the Marvin Center and into a townhouse on G Street. She also oversaw the transition to a modern Macintosh computer system for editing and pagination.

The student leaders said in addition to the legacies they hoped they left with their groups and on campus, they will carry some memories and experiences with them. Each said they especially will recall the friends they have made and the people they have met.

As he heads to New Mexico for his job as a law clerk, Park said he will remember the time a student left him a thank-you note with a smiley face drawn on it after he stayed late at the SA office to photocopy a test file for her.

Cleary said he will remember sitting on the roof of Everglades Hall on the Fourth of July watching the fireworks between his sophomore and junior years at GW. Cleary said he plans to be in Washington again this July 4 and is hoping to get involved in either Bob Dole's or Pete Wilson's bid for the 1996 presidency. "Right, I'm kind of focused on this graduation thing, though," he said.

As she packs her bag for her trip to Spain this summer, Leibowitz said she fondly will think back to the time she and other Hatchet editors snuck from the press room into one of the $1,500-a-plate inaugural dinners when President Clinton took office. "We sat down at table No. 29, which is my lucky number, and prayed that no one else had to sit there," she said.

Leibowitz recalled when Hillary Clinton stopped at her table to speak to a woman from Arkansas who was sitting there, and "(former House Speaker) O'Neill stepped on my foot and growled at me."

Carter said he will remember the process of learning about the University so he could change aspects of things he did not like. Carter, a sociology major, said he has applied for a job in a Seattle office and plans to attend law school in the future.

Fugazy said her four years at GW taught her about working with and respecting people, from vice presidents to the housekeeping staff. "You have to learn a system to be able to work with people," she said, adding that the business sense she has acquired will help her as she heads for St. John's University Law School in the future.

CAMPUS MAP & PARKING & SHUTTLE INFO

Parking and Bus Information

Parking on Campus and at the Ellipse

Each graduate will be given one parking permit. This permit will be honored at designated University parking garages (see campus map for parking lot and garage locations). Public parking is usually available around the Ellipse and on Constitution Avenue between 15th and 23rd streets. There is no reserved Commencement Parking in this area.

Shuttle Bus Information

The shuttle buses will operate from 7:30a.m. to 9:30 a.m. taking graduates and guests from campus to the Ellipse, and will operate after the ceremony until 2:00p.m. returning people to campus. Campus pick-up and drop-off will be on I Street between 21st and 22nd streets.

Wheelchair Accessible Shuttle Bus

Special shuttle buses will be provided for people in wheelchairs. The buses will pick-up riders on the north side of I Street between 21st and 22nd streets and will transport them to the Ellipse. The wheelchair accessible buses will run regularly between the Ellipse and the campus. Following the ceremony the buses will be available to return those guests in wheelchairs from the Ellipse to the campus.

Information For Individuals With Disabilities

Information for the deaf and hard of hearing: (202) 994-8250 (Voice-TDD). This is the number to call if you have any questions about graduation. This service is provided by the Office of Disabled Student Services. Sign language interpreters will be provided at the Commencement ceremony.

Unfortunately, our competitor is struggling with this simple test:

☐ True

☐ False

Now we're not saying anyone's lying, you understand.

It's just The Princeton Review can't seem to figure out exactly what's true. Their advertised average LSAT score improvement dropped from "10+ points" in 1993 to 7.5 last year. Now an arbitration panel has ruled that their "study" really only supported an average improvement of 6.9 points. That same arbitration panel ruled similarly for their MCAT, GRE and GMAT studies.

In fact, Princeton Review has been forced to abandon or lower every score claim that has ever been legally challenged and resolved.

It's no wonder more than twice as many students take Kaplan, the acknowledged leader in LSAT, MCAT, GMAT and GRE preparation. Our expert instructors know the tests inside out, so they can help you get your highest possible score. And our score improvements are backed by rock-solid Price Waterhouse studies.

COMMENCEMENT CEREMONY INFORMATION

The Commencement ceremony will be held rain or shine on the Ellipse. In the case of threatening or rainy weather, graduates and guests are encouraged to bring umbrellas, rain gear and a sense of humor! In the event of severe inclement weather, the Commencement ceremony will be abbreviated. For clarification regarding the status of Commencement in the event of inclement weather on Sunday, May 14, please call (202) 994-4949 or (202) 994-5050. Graduates should remind their guests that the ceremony will take place on grass that may be moist, and there will be a considerable amount of walking. Appropriate footwear is encouraged.

Please Note:

All ushers and official Commencement staff will be identified by red GW baseball caps and nametags. Please look to these guides for any assistance.

D.C. MAP - HOW TO GET TO THE ELLIPSE

Parking

Each graduate will receive one parking permit for May 14. This permit will be valid for May 14 only, for one space on campus in designated lots. Since parking will be extremely limited on campus and at the Ellipse, it is recommended that Commencement guests arrive early or consider alternative transportation. If guests are staying in hotels within the vicinity of the Ellipse, it is recommended that they walk to the Ellipse or take a cab rather than drive.

Shuttle Bus Service

Those parking on the GW campus may walk to the Ellipse (approximately 12 minutes) or use the shuttle bus service located on campus on I Street between 21st and 22nd streets. Shuttle buses will operate from 7:30a.m. to 9:30a.m. taking graduates and guests from campus to the Ellipse, and will operate after the ceremony until 2:00p.m. returning people to campus. Wheelchair accessible shuttle buses will be in service from the same location.

Shuttle bus service can become crowded. Plan to board buses well before 9:00a.m. if you plan to see or be in the academic procession.

Metro Service

Guests can take the Metro to the McPherson Square station (near the White House) on the Blue and Orange lines and then walk to the Ellipse. The Metro opens at 8a.m. on Sundays. Guests may also ride Metro to the GW/Foggy Bottom station and then take the shuttle buses to the ceremony from campus. The shuttle buses will pick up guests between 21st and 22nd streets on I Street, one block from the GW/Foggy Bottom Metro station (see shuttle bus information above).

Brunch highlights graduation day celebration

BY KAREN D. ANCILLAI
ARTS EDITOR

As the GW Band plays the alma mater and the graduates file through the Ellipse May 14, they will be thinking about only one thing.

A job? A place of their own? Marriage? No, the answer is brunch.

Here are a few suggestions about where to take the family for a celebration meal that will not require you to take out another student loan. Just be sure to make reservations:

- The Collector at the Dupont Plaza Hotel, 1500 New Hampshire Ave. N.W., is a combination art gallery and restaurant. The artwork on display changes every few weeks, but the Sunday brunch buffet is always delicious. Choose from the breakfast fare of eggs, ham, sausage, bacon, potatoes and pastries and lunch offerings of fish, chicken, rice and vegetables. The Collector also has waffle and omelet stations and salad and juice bars. Coffee and tea are included for $12.95 per person, and children under 12 are half price. Brunch is served from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Call (202) 483-600, ext. 160.

- The Front Page, 1333 New Hampshire Ave. N.W., has a bountiful all-you-can-eat brunch buffet on Sundays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Choose from waffles, omelets, hash browns, ham, bacon, fruit salad, pastries, grits, corned beef hash, roast beef and salads. The cost is $11.95 and unlimited champagne is included if you bring the ad from The Washington Post's Weekend section. Call (202) 296-6500.

- Julio's, 1604 U St. N.W., offers a Sunday brunch buffet with its famous pizza, pastas, Belgian waffles, breakfast meats, eggs, fresh pastries, cake and fruit and salad bars, from 10 to 3 p.m. The price is $11.95. Children under 12 are half price. Beverages are extra, but more you can get unlimited champagne or mimosas. Call (202) 8500.

- The Marriott Washington, 1221 22nd St. N.W., serves a weekend breakfast buffet from 7 a.m. to 12 p.m. They offer omelets, waffles, eggs any style, potatoes, sausage, bacon, fresh fruit, muffins, coffee, tea and juice. The price is $9.95 per person, and children under 10 accompanied by an adult eat free. Call (202) 872-1500.

- Mick's, 2401 Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., offers a breakfast buffet featuring burritos, three types of omelets and strawberry and blueberry French toast along with its regular menu of fresh salad, sandwiches and pasta selections from 11:30 a.m. on weekends. Breakfast prices range from $3.95 to $5.95. Mick's also has a children's menu. Call (202) 331-9613.

- The Old Ebbitt Grill, 675 St. N.W., has a brunch menu that changes every week. Typical selections include French toast, cakes, omelets, salmon and steak and eggs, pasta, pan-fried trout, burger sandwiches, and salads. Prices range from $5.95 to $9.95 and beverages are extra. Brunch is served from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Call (202) 347-4800.

- T.G.I. Friday's, 2100 Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., offers a breakfast menu of eggs Benedict, waffles, french potato skins and omelets, fruit medley, pecan French toast, French toast stuffed with ham and cheese and omelets. Accompany its regular menu of American cuisine. Brunch is served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on weekends and prices range from $5.95 to $8.00. Champagne is included with the meal. Call (202) 872-4344.
